Meeting Notes - 4/18/2023

Meeting for the 2nd time with the TA on 4/18, we established a few key areas that immediately need to be addressed. The following items are to be addressed as soon as possible:

- Release Notes: We did not have release notes for the first week or for the second week. These must be added and included in future weeks. The release notes should primarily contain new features added as well as major bug fixes.
- Project Board: Our Project Board was not up to standard. We did not correctly implement the user stories or the epics. As soon as possible we will adjust the project board to show more specific interface implementations, success criteria for the user stories, as well as more detailed and applicable epics.

In addition to items we did not complete from the previous week, we discussed with the TA what needs to be done in the coming weeks. To start, a major issue that needs to be addressed is the infrequency of commits to the main branch. This week we will work on compiling all of our separate pages and actually push the combined version to the main branch. This way there will be less confusion as to what the vision for the website should look like.

Furthermore, our backend team is working as quickly as possible to get the Ebay API to send and receive meaningful data. This has been one of the main roadblocks so far which has prevented us from actually implementing the website idea into action. As soon as possible we plan to obtain information from the Ebay API and then start storing it in our database.

Further items to be completed:

- CSS and Stylesheet Changes: Font color, sizes, and stylistic choices should be even throughout the design of the website
- Website functionality testing: We need to dedicate time towards testing the frontend and backend of the website.
